Through this book the author wishes to share with Young Minds, lessons acquired through his academic sojourn at the prestigious Northwestern University (USA) and subsequent work activities, encompassing anecdotes, observations and learning drawn from personal experience, subject matter experts, ex-colleagues and specific classmates that culminates into 31 career defining insights to prepare Young Minds for a radically different tomorrow.

Highlights:

- * What happens when you run into a distinguished alumnus of Northwestern University and Harvard University and he provides you a life-changing insight?
- * What happens when you are pleasantly coerced to experiment outside your 'comfort zone' by a creative genius?
- * Playing safe is one of the biggest risks in the 21st century. To prosper, you will have to take 'uncommon' risks even in a job.
- * It is possible for 'inexperienced' young minds to create entrepreneurial history.
- * Tomorrow's CEOs will come from the HR and PR domain.
